

It is disturbing to think that the FCC would consider re-opening the door to telemarketers in Wisconsin. We don't need more phone calls from people wishing to sell products and services. If anything, we should try to find even greater ways to limit these kinds of calls. I believe we have enough intelligence to decide when and where we will buy without being encouraged by a phone call.